A Message from the Board Chair and the Executive Director A YEAR OF GLOBAL CONNECTIONS

At One To World's Fulbright Awards Dinner last May, Fulbright Scholar Rose Kiwanuka spoke about the positive impact of One To World, here and around the globe.

Rose grew up on a farm in Kenya, with no running water or electricity. Rising above the local saying that "girls belong in the kitchen," she went to university for four years, got her master's degree, and taught business management at a university in Nairobi. In 2008, she came to Rutgers University on a Fulbright fellowship.

In Rose's words: "When I got here, everything was different, in every way. It took a huge leap of faith. When I got an email from One To World I thought, wow, an email from nobody I know. Someone here cares about me! The One To World office was the first one I came to in New York City. The amazing people there were so happy to see me, and we all had pizza together. They invited me to volunteer on Coney Island cleaning up the beach, and when I was late, they called me. The fact that someone called gave me confidence to get on the train alone."

She continued: "I don't know what I would have done without them. Their value is... you can't measure it, being a foreigner in a new place. In Nairobi I have a husband and four children, and it was difficult to leave home. But One to World is a family in another world. Life became easier for me. I have even been able to contribute back to the New York City community through One To World's Global Classroom program, teaching school children here about agriculture and farming!"

At the dinner, Rose presented a One To World Fulbright Award to Gary G. Mueller, who was a Fulbright Scholar to Germany from 1988 to 1990 when so many transformations were going on in the world, from the dismantling of apartheid to the collapse of communism across Eastern Europe.

Rose had met Gary through a One To World program, Conversations with World Leaders, in his office at Eagle Capital Management. He told our group of Fulbright scholars about his founding of ISI Emerging Markets, to further the transition to a market economy in Central/Eastern Europe. When Gary spoke of being a founding director of Endeavor, which supports entrepreneurs in emerging countries, Rose told him she wanted to bring Endeavor to Kenya. He immediately took the first step by putting her in touch with them.

In one year's time, through One To World, Rose has made connections with Americans that will last a lifetime, and that will enable her to improve life in Kenya when she returns home. And all of us here have been enriched by having known her.

Multiply Rose's story by thousands each year and you get a sense of One To World's impact. On behalf of our staff and board of directors, thank you for making this work possible through your interest and support!

The Mission of One To World

CREATING GLOBAL CITIZENS AND INSPIRING A PEACEFUL WORLD

One To World brings future leaders from around the world together with Americans – one to one – sharing similarities and appreciating differences to build cultural understanding across the globe.

We believe that world peace begins when individuals from different cultures exchange perspectives, face to face, in an open and engaging forum.

One To World is designated by the U.S. Department of State as the official coordinator of Fulbright enrichment programs in the greater New York area. In addition to working with Fulbright grantees, One To World promotes connections with the 65,000 self-sponsored international students studying in the greater New York area.

These outstanding representatives of their countries have much to teach us, and much to gain from knowing us better. By offering a constant stream of meaningful face-to-face interactions in American homes, schools, businesses, and institutions, One To World creates goodwill, peaceful interactions, and mutual understanding across borders.

Learn about One To World's dynamic programs on the following pages:

"I believe that there is a direct connection between the quality of relationships which international students develop while they are in the United States, and the quality of the economic and political alliances they will make in the years to come."

Senator J. William Fulbright (1905-1995)

GLOBAL CLASSROOM

Picture this: a New York City classroom where university scholars from South Africa, Bosnia, The Philippines, Iraq, Chile, Japan, and Mexico ignite young students' interest in the history, life, and culture of these countries, expanding knowledge and fostering students' pride in their own unique cultures and talents.

A private school in Manhattan? Think again. It's One To World's Global Classroom, bringing the world to public schools in the South Bronx, Bedford Stuyvesant, and Long Island City, just to name a few -- because every student has the right to a global education, not just the privileged few.

At a high school in one of the poorest districts in the Bronx, where gang activity and school fights have been endemic, Global Guides led workshops on the ethnic cleansing in Bosnia, apartheid in South Africa, and the nonviolent approaches of Nelson Mandela and Mahatma Gandhi, striking a strong cord with students struggling to avoid violence in their own confrontations with one another.

At M.S. 131 in Chinatown, Iman, a Global Guide from Iraq, spoke of her experience during the Iraq war, describing her life before and after Saddam Hussein's regime. In another workshop, Manuel, a Global Guide from Mexico, discussed reasons why Mexicans immigrate to the U.S., sparking animated dialogue among the many students who are Chinese immigrants with similar experiences.

These conversations change students' lives.

"Global Classroom enables our students to build real world knowledge, like no other program. Suddenly, students who have struggled are eager to think critically and ask thoughtful questions."

Carmen Bardeguéz-Brown, Co-Founder, School for Excellence, The Bronx

FOREIGN AFFAIRS CONFERENCES

At the invitation of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point and the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, One To World sends an elite delegation of international scholars to participate in annual foreign affairs conferences, which gather outstanding American undergraduates from all over the country with cadets and midshipmen to debate and formulate model American foreign policy. One To World's delegates provide first-hand global perspectives otherwise lacking from such forums, and these young leaders from around the world find that their views of the United States shift dramatically through meaningful dialogue with young Americans.

GAINING A NEW PERSPECTIVE

"Before the conference, I subscribed to stereotypes about the U.S. military, but that is absolutely not the case now. The Academy students were so engaged in the topics and interested to learn about us foreign delegates and our points of view. This is an excellent opportunity for foreign students to catch a glimpse of the U.S. that many do not get to see, to discuss and debate real and important issues, and to build bridges with American naval students."

Androniki Psarias, Journalist, United Kingdom

COMMUNITY VISITS

Through One To World, international students and Fulbright grantees experience authentic American home hospitality in diverse urban, suburban, and rural settings. Weekend and holiday visits to host families in communities as distant as Lancaster County, Pennsylvania and as near as Bushwick, Brooklyn enable young global leaders to immerse themselves in American family life and community culture. In return, local hosts learn first-hand about countries and customs from around the world, creating a rich exchange of perspectives.

In the past year, One To World enabled 194 students to experience local community visits and homestays. Countries of origin included Vietnam, France, Afghanistan, Libya, Germany, Egypt, Indonesia, Taiwan, Chile, Nicaragua, Japan, Tunisia, Burkina Faso, Switzerland, Serbia, Turkmenistan, South Korea, India, Colombia, Nepal, New Zealand, Argentina, Bulgaria, Mexico, and many more.

COMMUNITY VISIT IN LITITZ, PA

"Mel and I have hosted international students in our home in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania over the Thanksgiving holiday with One To World for over 20 years. Growing up in a small rural town, our children had a limited understanding of what the rest of the world was like. We felt it was really important for them to learn to appreciate and respect other cultures and ways of life. So, by hosting foreigners from across the globe, we brought the world to our kids! Now, even though our children are grown, we are still very involved, and hope to continue to expand this tradition of promoting peace and understanding for many years to come."

Sue and Mel Rohrer, Community Visit Hosts

GLOBAL CAREER READINESS

Through One To World, young global leaders gain the tools to succeed in and enrich business efforts here and abroad. From practical corporate skills such as interviewing, resume writing, and etiquette, to mentorship opportunities and job shadowing with some of New York's finest businesses and institutions, One To World helps to ensure that students have the skills and attitudes needed by their future employers. Further, we provide future employers with connections to confident young international leaders with diverse ideas and perspectives.

Among the New York City hosts for Job Shadowing 2011 were:

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|---|
| Alston & Bird, LLP | John Dewey High School |
| Berkeley College | NBC Universal |
| The Brooklyn Museum | The New York City Department of Education |
| Citi | Opera America |
| The Council on Foreign Relations | Saint Francis College |
| Equity Trading Capital | The United Nations |
| The Fund for the City of New York | Weill Cornell Medical Center |
| George Langer Associates | World Education Services |

CONNECTING WITH BUSINESS LEADERS OF THE FUTURE

"The world's financial markets are vitally interconnected, and the demand for bright, talented, internationally educated individuals to join our institution is growing. One To World offers the corporate community opportunities to become acquainted with outstanding Fulbrighters and international students who come to New York City's institutions of higher education each year. These students comprise an incredibly valuable resource for the city's global businesses. We look forward to continuing our relationship with One To World and its vital young leaders."

Kevin Parker, Global Head, Deutsche Asset Management

CONVERSATIONS WITH WORLD LEADERS

Leaders in New York City business, philanthropy, education, and the arts share their personal histories and engage Fulbrighters in insightful discussions covering business, politics, economics, and culture, through One To World's Conversations with World Leaders program.

Roelfien Kuijpers hosts Fulbrighters at Deutsche Bank.

GAINING HOPE THROUGH EXCHANGE OF IDEAS

Adriana Gaviria, a Fulbright grantee from Colombia completing her PhD in Public & Urban Policy at The New School, said of her Conversation program with Gary Mueller of Eagle Capital Management:

"Talking with Gary re-fueled my optimism to continue. New York is a tough city, and being a PhD student in a foreign country can be a hard and lonely experience. We forget how lucky we are to have this opportunity to study in the U.S. and achieve the potential to make relevant changes in our own countries. While Gary was speaking, I imagined projects I can do in Colombia when I go back there, drawing on his experience."

In the past year, 12 outstanding and influential New Yorkers hosted One To World Conversations:

- Jack Abernathy, CEO, Fox Television Stations, Inc.
- Marc Feigen, Founding Partner, Feigen Advisors
- Jacob Haar, Co-founder and Managing Director of Microfinance, Minlam Asset Management (Fulbright grantee, Yemen 2003)
- David Heleniak, Senior Advisor, Morgan Stanley
- Roelfien Kuijpers, Global Head and Managing Director, DB Advisors, Deutsche Bank
- Neil Masterson, Global Managing Director of Investment Management, Thomson Reuters
- Gary Mueller, Managing Director, Eagle Capital Management (Fulbright grantee, Germany 1988)
- Kevin Parker, Global Head, Deutsche Asset Management
- Jonathan Schwartz, General Counsel, JP Morgan Investment Bank (Fulbright grantee, United Kingdom, 1986)
- Suzanne Siskel, Director of Social Justice Philanthropy, The Ford Foundation (Fulbright grantee, Indonesia 1983)
- Washington SyCip, Founder and Former CEO, SyCip, Gores, Velayo & Co.
- Alberto Vitale, Former Chairman and CEO of Random House, Inc. (Fulbright grantee, USA 1957)

COMMUNITY SERVICE PROJECTS

One To World partners with local non-profit organizations on projects that give international students and scholars the chance to give back to the city that has given so much to them. The concept of volunteerism differs dramatically from culture to culture, and through One To World community service programs, young global leaders experience the spirit and practice of the American service tradition. They also come to see how they, too, can be part of this effort while they are here, bringing their own expertise and experience to bear while increasing their empathy for others.

In the past year, One To World partnered with three outstanding non-profit organizations to offer multiple community service opportunities:

Coney Island Beach Cleanup

Partner: National Beach Cleanup Day, sponsored by the American Littoral Society, a coastal conservation organization

Feeding the Hungry and Homeless

Partner: Midnight Run, dedicated to finding common ground between the housed and the homeless

Painting a Local Public School in Jamaica, Queens

Partner: Publicolor, using color and painting to re-engage students in their education

GIVING BACK TO NEW YORK CITY

"I took part in One To World's feeding the homeless program on a cold, cold night in January. I was touched by the dedication of the staff and volunteers of Midnight Run, who go out and deliver sandwiches, rain or shine! Speaking with some of the people who are homeless, I found to my surprise that some have traveled the country, some spoke another language and were quite educated. It was a humbling experience for me. I realized that we tend to look down on homeless people because of their situation, but they are no less worthy than ourselves."

Stewart Bailey, Mountbatten Intern from the United Kingdom

FORUMS ON GLOBAL ISSUES

One To World offers forums exploring current global issues to encourage lively and respectful discussion and debate. Forums bring together all of our constituents: students and scholars from around the world, business leaders, university educators, public school teachers, and individual donors from many arenas.

2010-2011 Programs

Our Freedom's Forum at Thomson Reuters challenged participants to confront notions of freedom and the extent to which each of us should be allowed to act out our own will. Honest and courageous discussion helped us discover how much the concept of freedom differs from country to country, and how citizens of countries outside the U.S. view what is happening in this country and our actions abroad.

Participants included:

- Fernando Bermudez, Exonerated after 18 years in prison through the Innocence Project
- Mona Eltahawy, Commentator and Journalist on Arab and Muslim Issues
- Susan Herman, President of the ACLU
- Michael Hess, U.S. Attorney, the Pentagon Papers
- Paul Holmes, Crisis management consultant and former foreign correspondent in more than 50 countries

Our Film Screenings brought creators of four thought-provoking films from diverse countries into dialogue with audiences for a Q&A following each film.

Americana explores the lives of two American teenagers in their last months of high school before enlisting in the U.S. Army and going to Iraq.

Jean Charles was inspired by the true story of a Brazilian immigrant shot by Scotland Yard inside the London Underground in July 2005, shortly after the London terrorist attacks.

Bricks, Beds & Sheep's Heads tells the story of a Moroccan emigrant as he reflects on his life.

Meet Me at the River, a documentary, reveals the vibrating energy of South Africa through its music.

SPEAKING OUT ACROSS CULTURES

Daniel Sanfelici, a Fulbright grantee from Brazil studying Geography at the Graduate Center/CUNY, said after attending the screening of Americana:

"The movie and the follow-up debate made me think about the role of war and overseas interventions in American identity. Additionally, it pointed out divergent views of foreigners and Americans regarding the role of the U.S. in the world."

One To World FULBRIGHT AWARDS DINNER 2011

Each year, One To World hosts the Fulbright Awards Dinner to honor those who, in the spirit of the late Senator J. William Fulbright, have furthered peace and international understanding through their lives and work. The 2011 One To World Fulbright Awards Dinner marked 20 years of saluting outstanding Fulbright scholars alongside international leaders who are making significant contributions in business, education and philanthropy. We warmly thank our 2011 Honorees who helped to make this year's Dinner one of the most successful in our history.

Presenting awards were Fulbright Scholars from Morocco, Austria, and Kenya. Alma Zadic, a Fulbrighter from Austria whose family fled the war in Bosnia-Herzegovina when she was young, said "Since I have been in New York, through One to World I have met amazing Fulbrighters from Yemen, Iraq, Pakistan, Egypt and many other countries. Their stories about what is happening in their countries are important. They connect us to the country and the people in ways the news never can. Fulbrighters all over the world will be the change in their countries. They give us hope."

SUPPORTING ONE TO WORLD

JOIN US IN OUR EFFORT TO PROMOTE A PEACEFUL FUTURE!

The need to foster productive and peaceful relations among nations is more important than ever. In FY 2011, One To World met this challenge with generous support from friends and benefactors who believe that cross cultural understanding fosters good will among nations and breaks down prejudice.

Your tax-deductible donation strengthens One To World so we may continue to build programs that create goodwill, peaceful interactions, and mutual understanding across borders.

To learn more, please visit our website at www.one-to-world.org

To give, please contact Deborah Clifford, Executive Director, at 212.431.1195 x25
